Application for the extradition of Ms Bruni Dr. Rosamaria
Press Conference CEED on the mechanisms of legal plunder of foreign children
Andorra Friday, July 29, 2011 - 10:00am
- Criminal Court -

"A little Berlin girl deported abroad by her mother - Luna finally at home after 1888 days" headlined Bild Zeitung, the largest German daily newspaper; a narcissistic mirror of nationalism, gloating how Germans had recaptured chattel that eluded Germany for so many years.

Consider the report by questioning the facts: How is Berlin 'home' for a 9 year old girl who has never even lived in Germany nor speaks a word of German? How can the German community rejoice with such rapture in such violent trauma and psycho-logical laceration? How the forceable rendition of a child to a completely alien country be in her best interests? How might Luna feel confronted with a German father who imprisons her mother?

This report really glimpses a scandal in the dark heart of Europe, dimensions of unresolved issues the Union cannot even assess in scope. Germany (as EU demographic studies demonstrate) will lose 15 million inhabitants over the next 50 years. Accordingly, German Federal government policy manipulates family judicial processes in all aspects to retain the children of all foreign parents within its domain.

German legal experts coordinate their peculiar judicial system with European treaties to round up as many children as possible and to extort ransom from all across Europe. As such, German lawyers abuse the generous and full good faith and trust that their partners in Europe have been willing to lend them.

It is the policy suffered by Dr. Rosamaria Bruni, an Italian citizen, a child psychiatrist in Andorra, who has just spent three months in prison at the behest of official German authorities and mechanisms, which require the return of her daughter Luna as well as her own extradition to Germany.

Married to a German doctor, Ms. Bruni was resident in London until her separation. The English judge inadvertently awarded custody of very young children to a German father, perhaps because Luna was born in Berlin. A manhunt ensued for Ms. Bruni and her child throughout Hungary, then Guatemala, Italy and ultimately, Andorra. The former spouse of Dr. Bruni, Dr. Tinnemann, was supported in this campaign by his Foreign Minister (Mr Westerwelle) and the entire German public opinion, which considers that a foreign parent who refuses to live in Germany is a criminal. Upon formal denunciation by an Italian prosecutor (at the request of German authorities), Dr. Tinnemann had the mother arrested and subsequently kidnapped Luna, who has now been placed in his home by the German authorities.

On this occasion of the extradition trial, CEED will organize a press conference this Friday along with parents of different nationalities (American, Italian, French) who are themselves victims of brutal German State policy. They come in support of Dr. Rosamaria Bruni, but also as witness to ill-treatment of Dr. Marinella Colombo, who has likewise been imprisoned in Milan several times and most recently these last 5 months, sequestered without contact in the same manner and for the same reasons as Ms. Bruni in Andorra, despite clear and convincing evidence of gross fraud and perversion of due process as perpetrated by German lawyers and central authorities at all levels.
